2,000 VIEW CORNERSTONE CEREMONIES PIONEER HALL

Masonic Lodge Conducts Official Program Saturday

While impressive ceremonies marking the cornerstone laying to Pioneer Hall, brought reminiscent thoughts of pioneer days of toil and hardships—the culmination of a dream for a decade—more than 2,000 people stood with bared heads to witness this event. Linking the modern reality with reminiscence, overhead roared the motor of a giant 12-passenger airplane, circling and re-circling the spot where years ago a gigantic round-up of cattle from all sections of the Plains was staged.

Pioneer Hall, the new museum of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society is being erected on the southwest corner of the West Texas State Teachers College Campus.

The cornerstone was leveled by the Masonic Grand Lodge of Texas. Prominent Panhandle Masons performing the ceremonies included T. D. Hobart, Pampa, president of the Historical Society and acting Grand Master; W. H. Patrick, Clarendon; Sam Issacs, Canadian; Col. R. P. Smythe, Plainview; George Stapleton, Amarillo; J. G. Short, Amarillo; N. O. Carder, Amarillo; O. W. Gano and Dan Sanders, Canyon.

The ceremonies, a part of the annual Home Coming celebration of the college began at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning. Prior to the cornerstone services, officials of the Ex-Students Association conducted the regular chapel program in the Administration Building auditorium. A barbecue for the Exes their families and visitors was served at the conclusion of the program at Pioneer Hall. The climax of the day's program was the TIAA football game at Buffalo Stadium between the West Texas Buffaloes and Sul Ross Teachers College. The score was a 7-7 tie.

Into the cornerstone went a sealed copper box containing a buffalo horn, copies of speeches made during the ceremony, and copies of The Prairie, The Canyon News, the Amarillo News-Globe, the 1932-33 student directory, the college bulletin and an issue of the P. P. H. S. Review.

T. M. Caldwell, a representative of the Pathe News was on hand to photograph the ceremonies for Pathe.

Dr. Hill Pays Tribute
Members of the Society board of directors were seated on the platform during the ceremony.

Following the Masonic ceremonies, Dr. J. A. Hill, president of W. T. S. T. C., in his discourse paid a high tribute to the intrepid men and women who brought civilization to the plains country and who later, have made possible the erection of a structure to protect and preserve the records of not only their achievements, but those

Rev. C. E. Jameson Preached Farewell Sermon Sunday Eve

Rev. Jameson, for four years, pastor of the First Methodist Church of this city, delivered his farewell sermon before a capacity crowd at the church Sunday night. Congregations from the First Christian, First Baptist and First Presbyterian churches were dismissed for this farewell service. Ministers from these churches were present and assisted in the program of the evening.

Rev. Jameson was moved to Canyon from Memphis, Texas, four years ago. He has been an active Methodist minister for over 20 years. During the past 19 years he has served in only five towns. It is expected that the Northwest Texas Methodist Conference, meeting this week in Amarillo, will move the local minister and his family as they have been here four years, the ordinary time limit for a minister in one city.

Following the regular preaching services a Friendship Hour, sponsored by the Wesley Foundation group was held in the basement of the church.

Rev. Jameson used as the subject of his farewell sermon, "The Man With a Message," using the first chapter of St. John as scriptural basis of the discussion.

Democrat Rally Held Saturday Afternoon Here

A Democratic Rally of Randall county Democrats was held in the district court room at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Judge O'Lanthus Ellis, Amarillo, was the principal speaker. He attacked the Republican party as a whole and urged the crowd of listeners to vote the Democratic ticket straight. The meeting was termed a Democratic love feast endorsing the Roosevelt, Garner, Ferguson ticket.

Reminding the crowd of the position Texas would be in if the Democratic nominees won the national election while the people of Texas sent a member of the other party to the governor's chair, Judge Ellis urged the voters to support the entire ticket.

Oscar Smith presided at the meeting.

Bufs Pushed To Second Place in TIAA Standing

Hopes for a football championship for the West Texas Buffaloes faded when the try for field goal in the final second of the Sul Ross game Saturday went wild and missed the goal by only a few feet.

A victory of 19 to 13 for Texas A. & I. over Daniel Baker gave them the leading position in the TIAA race, while the Bufs and the Lobos locked horns in a 7-7 tie. The Bufs have only a hope of seeing both Sul Ross and A. & I drop a game before the season ends. The two remaining games on the Buff schedule are non-conference affairs.

Annual Poppy Sale Opens in Canyon Today

Annual Armistice Day poppy sale will open in Canyon this afternoon at 3 o'clock with the American Legion Auxiliary in charge.

A statement by the committee in charge of the local poppy sale, was issued this week.

"The poppies are made by disabled veterans in the U. S. Veterans Hospital at Legion Kerrville, Texas. Only those veterans make poppies who receive no compensation, or a very small one, from the Government.

"The proceeds from the Poppy sale will all go to the rehabilitation and child welfare program of the American Legion Auxiliary. The veterans receive one penny for each poppy they make. A meager sum, to be sure, but a fortune to those who have families dependent upon them.

"So poppies you see instead of being just little crushed buds of paper, are really shining beacons, flashing the way to contentment, self support and self-respect to hundreds of disabled veterans."

—Poppy Committee.

MRS. FERGUSON WINNER TEXAS VOTE BATTLE

Nine Amendments State Constitution May Be Approved

A nation-wide sweep of votes to the banner of the Democratic party in Tuesday's election recorded the greatest national victory for the Democrats since the Civil War, as the lead of Democratic candidates continued to pile up with Wednesday's tabulation reports.

On the face of the Wednesday returns, indications pointed to practically a complete victory for the Democratic national ticket, with Roosevelt and Garner leading Hoover and Curtis in 41 states, giving the Democrats 461 electoral votes out of 531, with a possibility of annexing Kentucky's 11 electoral votes.

In Texas Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, was swept into office over Orville Bullington, Republican candidate, by a very substantial majority. Indications were that her lead would reach the 100,000 mark before tabulations are completed.

The early tabulations by the Texas Election Bureau indicated that all of the nine constitutional amendments to the state constitution voted on in Tuesday's election would carry by a substantial majority. However, these early returns cannot be taken for granted because reports from the outlying districts may reverse the apparent victories for some of the amendments. This was demonstrated in 1929, during the administration of Gov. Dan Moody, when on the face of early returns it appeared that the amendments had carried, whereas, the later tabulations revealed the defeat of the amendments sponsored at that time.

Incomplete, unofficial returns Wednesday morning indicated that Bullington had carried Randall county by more than a hundred votes. While on the National ticket, the Democratic victory was overwhelming. All amendments (Continued on last page)

THE BOY AND HIS DAD

The Higgins News: Thursday of last week the local Lions Club sponsored a Father and Son banquet at Fellowship Hall, the principal speaker being Gene Howe of the Amarillo News-Globe.

As this child of the print shop listened to the program and noted the fathers and sons, or sons borrowed for the evening, our thoughts wandered back to the story written by William Allen White, in which the noted Kansas editor told how a little boy got acquainted with his father.

The little boy, dressed in his "Sunday-go-to-meeting" clothes climbed to the spring seat of the farm wagon and sat very still by his father's side, as the team plodded along the road toward the big town where the father was billed to speak at a political rally. But pretty soon the father began to talk, the boy listening as he had never listened to his dad before. The father did not talk down to his son, but treated him as if he were a man fully capable of understanding the knotty problems of Kansas politics. And as the boy looked up in the earnest face of his father, he thought his dad was the biggest man in Kansas. When the farm wagon stopped before the hall in the big town, the boy saw the men shaking hands with his father and escorting him to the hall; later, when he heard his father talking from the rostrum, and clapped his hands with the others who gave his father long and hearty applause, the lad smiled proudly and thought his dad the biggest and best man in all the world. Going home, the boy snuggled up to his dad in the spring seat as the wagon rattled along the road.

The little boy had become acquainted with his father.

And as Gene Howe spoke to the fathers and sons gathered about the tables, our mind wandered back to a print shop in Kansas.

Perchance a little lad stood by the battered desk where his father was busily writing copy for the paper he loved and for which he had struggled and toiled during the pioneer days when hot winds, drouth, crop failures and hardships made the editor wonder if he could pull the paper through.

As the lad stood watching his father's hand moving swiftly back and forth as he wrote page after page, until the copy was stacked like a mountain of paper on the desk, the son of the Kansas editor somehow caught the fire that burned in his father's breast and timidly snuggling up to his dad, he became aware of the fact that his father was the biggest and best man in all the length and breadth of Kansas. And when it chanced that the man who finally wrote "30" on the last sheet, looked into the bright eyes of his son, he read the story written there. And father and son drew closer together by the old battered desk.

And the print shop boy became acquainted with his dad.

Today, the man who thus toiled in the Atchison Globe office and made a name for himself and his paper prospered and became a household word in Kansas, is eighty and the little boy has long since grown to manhood.

May Gene Howe be to Texas what Ed Howe was to Kansas.

SOME SUPERSTITIONS
Among the hundreds of superstitious beliefs still held by otherwise intelligent people may be named the following, compiled by a recent writer:

It is bad luck to spill salt or break a mirror. Putting on a garment backwards or wrong side out by mistake brings good luck. Fish is a brain food. Handling a toad will cause warts. Only the good die young. It is unlucky to light three cigarettes with one match. Friday and the 13th of the month are unlucky, especially if they happen to fall on the same day. To pick up a pin means good luck. Crops should be planted according to the moon. Knocking wood averts a penalty for boasting of former good luck.

The list of such superstitions and beliefs is almost endless. And it is not only the ignorant who act upon such beliefs. Most people, including those who have achieved greatness, have their pet superstitions. To mention only a few:

President Lincoln was superstitious about dreams. President Cleveland always carried a horse chestnut in his pocket for luck. Mussolini consults astrologers. Bill Tilden of tennis fame carried a four-leaf clover. Poli Negri thinks her screen career was damaged by a black cat crossing her path. Chalapin, famed opera star, always puts on his left shoe first. Sarah Barnhardt would not let any of her company wear yellow. Napoleon feared cats and maneuvered his armies according to the stars. Stanley Baldwin carried a rabbit's foot. And many hotels and office buildings omit the number 13 in numbering their floors, in deference to superstitious guests and tenants.

A small minority of persons are hardboiled enough to call all these superstitions the bunk, and defy them accordingly. How about yourself? Would you walk under a ladder, or open an umbrella indoors.

AFTER FOURTEEN YEARS

Armistice Day, marking the 14th anniversary of the end of the World War, again recalls the stern realities of that titanic struggle, which changed the way of the world.

The significance of the events which have occurred since November 11, 1918, may be variously interpreted, according to the viewpoint from which we see them. To some it will appear that great progress has been made toward universal peace, while to others the trend of events will imply grave danger for the future.

Even a single individual may reasonably waver between hope and fear—hopeful when some felicitous occurrence seems to draw the nations closer together fearful when an outbreak here or there threatens to undo all efforts for concord and understanding.

No one is wise enough to foretell the future. Was the "war to end war" the last great clash of nations, or was it only the prelude to more frightful slaughter and destruction yet to come?

Only time can give the answer, and in the meantime it behooves all right-thinking persons, and particularly those in positions of influence and responsibility, to exercise whatever they may possess of tolerance, forbearance and the will to do justice to their fellowmen.

Recently a noted financier spoke before a gathering of business men. His theme was bringing back better times. He voiced the sentiment that business in general must get out of the rut before much lasting progress could be made. Trying to bring back better times was not a political job, he said. It must be the people's job. When the people, as a whole, get down to brass tacks and live within their means, saving as well as spending, there will be a more stable condition that will not be likely to give way when hard times come. The fat years should find a way to take care of the lean years without the lean years being depression years. And although people today were having a hard time, if the lesson learned was not forgotten when business came back, the depression would be a good thing for the people, especially the laboring classes. A new and better business based on solid financial foundation would be the result, if business methods were revised and the spirit of gambling was put down. Business would come back, but with it a different code born in the dark hour of the nation's need. This code would be of benefit to those who reorganized and put their business on a firm foundation. There has been too much speculation and building on the future.—Higgins News.

In spite of the leaders who fail to lead,

In spite of Bribery, Graft, and Greed,

Pile on the taxes we have to pay, I still believe in the U. S. A.

In spite of the note with Interest due,

In spite of an Income cut in two,

In spite of the Bond that fails to pay,

In spite of the Dividend gone astray,

I still believe in the U. S. A.

In spite of the Gang and the Racketeer—

Hell-fire whiskey and weak-kneed beer,

In spite of the lawyer that knows the way

To serve the crooks by the Law's delay,

I still believe in the U. S. A.

In spite of the Banks and Foreign Loans,

Frozen as hard as the Arctic stones,

In spite of the cotton we hold today,

In spite of the wheat we've stored away,

I still believe in the U. S. A.

In spite of the Hell we're passing through,

There's still a fight in me and you

It may be hard, but we'll find a way,

It's bound to help if you grin and say,

"I still believe in the U. S. A."

Don't despise the plodder. The lightning bug travels slowly but he comes to a brilliant end.

Another trouble with the country is that the bigger the bank-roll the tighter the rubber band.

Explorer Plans Polar Flight to Clear Up Mystery of Antarctic Region

A 2900-MILE flight through the bleak region surrounding the South Pole to determine whether the Antarctic Continent is composed of two great islands, or is a solid range of mountains, will be undertaken late next year by the noted explorer, Lincoln Ellsworth, and the equally famous pilot, Bernt Balchen.

This journey, once called "the last great adventure in the history of South Polar exploration," is expected to be completed between September, 1933, and May, 1934.

Using Little America, on the Ross Sea, as a base, Ellsworth and Balchen expect to make the trans-Antarctic flight to the Weddell Sea and back in not more than 20 hours. While Balchen handles the controls and operates the wireless, Ellsworth will map and photograph prominent features of the land, note weather conditions and record the character of the ice surfaces.

The two men hope to clear up this important geographical problem whether the great oceanic indentations that form the Weddell Sea on one side of the Continent and the Ross Sea on the other continue as a trough, dividing the Continent into two great land masses; or whether the 10,000-foot mountains of Graham Land continue across the Antarctic region to join the Queen Maud Range.

THE plane which Ellsworth and Balchen will use embodies all the safeguards known to modern aviation against perils which might arise during the flight. It is a giant, cabin monoplane, with a maximum flying range of 3600 miles at 135 miles an hour. A supercharged engine, tremendous horsepower and variable pitch propeller minimize the danger of crashing into uncharted mountains. Detachable skis permit ice landings and take-offs. Brakes on the under side of each wing, and other braking devices, permit landing in short distances. A forward cabin provides space for 100 pounds of camp and sled equipment, and 175 pounds of rations.

BOTH men are experienced in polar exploration work. Back

In 1925, Ellsworth and Roald Amundsen attempted to fly to the North Pole by means of seaplanes. While the attempt failed, the party came nearer to the Pole than anyone except Peary had been up to that time. The following year Ellsworth, accompanied by Amundsen and General Umberto Nobile, sailed above the North Pole in an airship. It was during preparation for this trip that Ellsworth met Balchen, a young Norwegian pilot and naval officer. Balchen later came to the United States, to act as Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's pilot on the latter's flights from Roosevelt Field to France and, two years later, over the South Pole.

NEW COURTHOUSE DEBATE

Tuesday night in the district court room before a good audience of citizens the new courthouse question was taken up and thoroughly threshed out. Mayor Haney and R. A. Sowder, Esq., proposed the new courthouse and immediate action looking to its erection, Judge J. C. Hunt, assisted by the News' editor opposed the proposition. The time limit for these speakers was fixed at 15 minutes each and all had to be called down.

L. T. Lester said he favored the proposition; that it could not be too good for him; that Randall county's present needs demanded a new courthouse and a first class one in all respects and that if the citizens would say a hundred thousand dollar courthouse and jail he would willingly donate five thousand dollars out of his own pocket towards it. Such sentiments, well expressed and heartily spoken from one of the heaviest taxpayers of the county, brought down the house. There is not a more public spirited man or one more liberal with his means in the entire Panhandle than Mr. Lester and Canyon City is proud of him. L. G. Conner also spoke. He briefly went over the early history of the county, starting Canyon City himself as postmaster in a dugout some seventeen years ago. He spoke of conditions in the county when the present courthouse was built and said that the county had outgrown it and was more able to build a hundred thousand or even a hundred and fifty thousand dollar courthouse now, than it was the present one of several years ago.

At the conclusion of the speaking a rising vote was called for on the proposition and about nine-tenths of those present recorded themselves as "favoring the new courthouse."

Britons Start World Hike

Not out for a bit of a jaunt around the block, but with a slightly more ambitious goal in mind, these three Englishmen are shown as they set out from London on a 'round-the-world hike. The three, left to right, Tony Creed of West Bromwich, Fred Kitchen and James Brown, both of Bradford, are making their journey in quest of adventure, and expect to complete it in four years—if their legs hold out.

THE CROWDED FUTURE.

Industrial chemists predict that at the present rate of population increase, in another 500 years there will be only a square yard of earth apiece for the human inhabitants of this globe.

The chemists are confident, however, that by that time they will have such control of nature that each person's square yard will be farm enough to produce the food he needs. That is comforting news for those who have confidence in the science of chemistry and whose first thought is of the stomach.

But how about room for exercise? The athlete of that day will have to learn to skip rope and golf will be played in a saucer. Football and baseball would not be seriously affected for they now crowd a sufficient part of the population into inadequate stands to clear enough square yards for the game.

There are some people who have been under the impression that the square-yard era has been with us for at least ten years. Another who has entertained the same false idea is the Sunday afternoon and holiday motorist. The bargain-day shopper makes it a threesome.

Happily, birth rates have a way of collapsing under their own weight before the striding stage in population is quite reached. There is some disposition also where people consider human quality of as great importance as human quantity, to preserve the standing room by deliberate means.

If Ghandi could influence a government by starving, a lot of our jobless citizens have been passing up a bet these many months by not wearing loin cloths.

Of course the pioneers deserve credit for overcoming losing odds. But it's also a good idea to remember they had no politicians telling them how to run their business.

The brave husband who brags about setting his foot down at home usually takes his shoes off when he gets in late to keep from waking his wife.

One reason why romance lasted a great deal longer during the good old days was because a bride looked much the same after she washed her face.

A new microphone has been invented which reproduces sound exactly. Now we'll learn whether crooners are really human beings.

Again we pay homage to those men who fought and bled upon a glorious battlefield. They were men of indomitable will and unswerving purpose and we can well cherish their memory. But let us not forget the idealism for which those men fought—they fought not to win a war but to win everlasting peace. We must not break faith with them! In remembering and commemorating their stirring deeds let us dedicate ourselves to their ideal and pray that our youth and the youth of other nations shall never again meet upon a battlefield.

ZITA H. D. CLUB MEETS TUESDAY

Mrs. Jim Watson, pantry demonstrator for the Zita Home Demonstration Club, displayed a very interesting and valuable pantry to her guests Tuesday when she was hostess to the members of the club for their Achievement Day Program. Mrs. Watson has a remarkable exhibit of 569 quarts of fruits and vegetables which she has canned during the four months the home demonstration club has been organized.

During the afternoon forty-five guests inspected the pantry, the menu table, showing four well balanced meals taken entirely from the pantry, and the gift table showing various things taken from the pantry that one can present to a friend, such as jellies, preserves, home made candies or the delicious whole wheat bread made by Mrs. Watson's mother, Mrs. E. M. Elliott.

After this inspection the guests were invited into the dining room where tea was being poured by Mrs. E. M. Elliott and Mrs. Mary Simmon.

The next meeting of the club will be on November 22. The members will assemble in Canyon at nine a. m. and make a tour of the various pantries of the county.—Reported.

Federal Forest Man Praises Palo Duro Possibilities

An article appearing in the current issue of West Texas Today, the official magazine of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, by John D. Jones, assistant Regional Forester, of Albuquerque, the scenic beauty of the Palo Duro Canyon is discussed.

Mr. Jones, accompanied by Herbert N. Wheeler, Chief Lecturer of the U. S. Forest Service, Washington, D. C., were visitors in Canyon in the summer and gave a lecture in the auditorium of the Education Building at the College.

The two men were traveling under the auspices of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Concerning the visit to Canyon Mr. Jones says:

"The visit at Amarillo was cut short in order to meet an engagement at West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon that afternoon. This lecture had been arranged through the courtesy of Mr. C. R. Burrow of the Burrow Lumber Company, a personal friend of Mr. Wheeler's, and at the earnest solicitation of President Hill of the College. The lecture was given in the college auditorium, where the largest audience so far encountered, over 500, were present. It was felt that these teachers, educators and leaders of West Texas gathered much from the lecture and will spread the gospel of tree planting and beautification throughout the state."

"Following the lecture, County Agent Upchurch and Secretary Wortham of the chamber of commerce, drove Mr. Wheeler and myself out to the Palo Duro Canyon where the city of Canyon is now trying to establish a state or national park. This magnificent canyon some three to five miles wide by 25 miles in length forms the head of Red River and contains some wonderful scenic views which should be preserved to posterity as a public park, either under state or national jurisdiction. In coloring it resembles the Grand Canyon very much, and if developed with roads and trails, would make a playground and game sanctuary of national importance. Deer, antelope, and wild turkey would particularly thrive in the cedar and oak breaks which would furnish ample food and cover for this type of game."

R.-W. Ratcliff, who has been working in Pampa, returned here Tuesday.

WHO GOES THERE?

says the wise shopper

Challenge of the sentry on guard, abrupt and imperative in the dark. "Advance and give the countersign!"

To the woman in the home, alertly watchful over her household budget, passwords are important. Everything offered for sale is subject to suspicion unless it bears the countersign—the familiar trademark—the name of a manufacturer or merchant whom she knows.

Every week she studies the advertising columns. From them she determines values, and decides what she will buy and where. She knows that advertised goods are safe goods, backed by the reputation of the maker and the merchant.

When she goes shopping—whether for a bottle of ketchup or for a pearl necklace—she challenges each product with a "Who goes there?" And if it has the password of advertised excellence she makes her purchase without hesitation.

The advertisements in this paper are a safe guide to buying. Read them every day. Keep in touch with the latest news of price, style and quality. Then buy with the assurance that you will get your money's worth.

Historic Masterpiece of Plains Given by J. O. Guleke for Laying of Museum Cornerstone Saturday

Citizens gathered here to participate in the laying of this cornerstone are conscious of the symbolism here attested in keeping alive the memory of strong men and their heroic deeds performed in the development of the Panhandle of Texas. This enduring building will evidence to succeeding generations our appreciation for the achievements of those who have gone before us.

This territory first yielded its aboriginal setting to the colorful touch of the white race under the leadership of Coronado and his Conquistadors, who passed this way in 1541. Then followed the period of the Mexican traders and hunters through the middle years of the Nineteenth Century to approximately 1875, as they came from the settlements of New Mexico across these plains for the purpose of hunting buffalo to supply meat for their larders and robes for the purpose of trading with the plains Indians. Their memories are preserved in the nomenclature left in this region, such as the Llano Estacado, the names of our streams like the Palo Duro, Tierra Blanca, Punta la Agua, Concho, Colorado, and other similar terms. Aside from the expedition of Major Long in 1823 and the trail of Captain R. B. Marcy from Fort Smith to Santa Fe in 1849, when he explored the regions of the Red River perhaps to the location of our present site for this museum; camping here in approximately the year 1852, this country had not been frequented by the Caucasian race. Thus we find that the history of this region is rather recent in point of time as measured in the memory of man.

It would be well to recount the period of the Indian campaigns in the Panhandle through the early and middle seventies, resulting in the development of Indian reservations and the national policy established in 1874 when the expeditionary forces of the United States Army were under the commands of General R. S. McKenzie and Colonel Nelson A. Miles. The McKenzie battle ground on Tule Canyon marks an outstanding historical event incident to such campaigns conducted usually by cavalry sortie from Fort Elliott, Fort Griffin and other posts.

We should recall that among the first buffalo hunters entering this region was James C. Cator, who camped upon the North Palo Duro, now Hansford County, in December, 1873. Some of his personal papers have recently been deposited in this museum as a rare contribution to the historical data pertinent to early Panhandle history. The period from 1873 to 1879 probably marks the era of commercial hunting in the Panhandle. The principal hide markets were found in Dodge City on the north, Fort Griffin on the east, Fort Worth on the southeast, and Fort Concho on the south. Among the names that are outstanding in that period and representative of the type of the population then resident of our section that deserve prominence are John Poe, Joe Jacobs, James C. Caator, Billy Dixon and J. Wright Moor. These men engaged the Indian and were often subjected to harassment. Even battles are recorded; chief among them being the "Battle of Adobe Walls" in which Billy Dixon, the scout, by heroic action established his claim to enduring memory. His widow is in attendance upon this ceremony.

Past upon the heels of the commercial hunter came the cattleman and trail driver. This is the most engaging and romantic period of Panhandle history, and will likely be so recognized by the historian of the future. Colonel Chas. A. Goodnight came down from Colorado in 1875, wintering his herd upon the upper reaches of the Canadian River near the New Mexico line. The springtime found him on the move to the home ranch site on the Palo Duro which he entered by the old Indian Trail directly east of the site of this museum. He established headquarters in 1876 and began his constructive program of building the foundation upon which to rear the edifice of our present development. To Goodnight is due the appellation "Father of the Panhandle." As a trail blazer he will rank among the nation's notable men, Cody, Carson and others. As a trail driver he had no superiors and few were his peers. As a breeder his contributions are outstanding and the markets of the world recognize his achievements. His empirical experiments in the field of agriculture, horticulture and animal husbandry produced amazing results that contributed to the rapid development of the natural resources of the country. As a citizen and philosopher he stood as the leader. The Indians learned to respect the man and accepted his word without question. It is recorded that government treaties with the Indians could not be sealed and delivered without the sanction and approval given by Goodnight to the Indian Chief that it was good and would be performed. Surely the worthy traditions of this Panhandle pioneer is a priceless heritage to a free people. Colonel Goodnight founded an academy of learning near his home ranch, made generous contributions to its maintenance and support. To this good day it may be said that his benefactions in this respect total more in terms of material wealth than those of any other citizen. He witnessed in the span of a life of more than ninety years, the transformation of this region from its virgin state in nature to the development of a modern civilization. Scarcely has any man in history had such a wonderful opportunity to impress his thought, ideals and strength of character upon so wide a territory under benign and propitious circumstances. To him is due a monument of enduring perpetuity. He loved the Panhandle and the Palo Duro Canyon served him as a permanent home site for more than fifty years. Perhaps it would not suffice to erect of man made material a marker of our respect. It should be of nature's own handiwork to fittingly commemorate the dignity, grace and character of one of God's noblemen. May we here propose that the citizens of the Panhandle of Texas lend their efforts to have designated, by a special memorial act of the Legislature of Texas, a roadway to traverse the scenic portion of the Palo Duro Canyon leading from this museum through the canyon to Goodnight (the last resting place of our illustrious pioneer) to be known as "The Goodnight Trail," thus perpetuating in the eternal walls of the canyon he loved so well, our recognition of the varied and enduring services he rendered to Texas. The Goodnight collection, donated during his lifetime, constituted the nucleus of this wonderful accumulation of material which we trust may be useful to those who follow us in determining historically the development of our country and the cultural advancement of its people.

Notable pioneers of the cattle range era, contemporaries of Goodnight, were Colonel T. S. Bugbee, who located on the Canadian in the fall of 1876, followed by H. W. Creswell and Robert Moody. A list of the early pioneers includes the names of John Evans, Judge O. H. Nelson, Alfred and Vincent Rowe, Mose Hays, Dick McNulty, George W. Littlefield, Job Gunter, W. B. Munson, Hank Smith, H. H. Campbell, Perry LeFors, Nick Eaton, Henry Fry, Tobe Odom, L. G. Coleman and McClelland Brothers. There are others. These are representative cattlemen who knew the open range without drift fences; until Glidden and Sanborn brought wire into the Panhandle. Portions of the old wire may yet be seen along the "Block Line Fence" north of Amarillo between Block 9, Beatty, Seale and Forwood, and Block 2, Adams, Beatty and Moulton, now known as Western Avenue in that city.

This vast region was practically without organized government until the advent of the Texas Rangers under Captain G. W. Arrington. Among the most interesting accounts of that period will be found the Arrington papers, deposited in this collection. The Arrington expedition from the caves of the Yellowhouse Canyon (near Lubbock) into the Northwest (Lamb County and beyond), engagements with hostile Indians, travel by night, lack of water and, finally, the bitter experience in the blizzard is one of the most thrilling accounts of hardship endured by sturdy plainsmen in their effort to advance the lines of the white frontier. Among others who stood for law and order in this period the names of Cape Williamson and Jim East are worthy of particular mention. "Boot Hill" cemetery at Tascosa, remains to reflect the actions of men in a period of feint restraint by law when difficulties were to be settled. Those resting in that historic place having died with their boots on; hence its name.

With the advent of barbed wire the open range gave way to the fenced domains of the cattle barons. These ranches were large and some covered an area of more than several counties. Outstanding in this respect was the X I T or Capitol Syndicate Ranch. This land grant was made for the purpose of erecting the State Capitol at Austin. Others of notable mention are the Matadors, Spur, Spade, J. A. (Goodnight-Adair), Rocking Chair, Mill Irons, Shoenail, Diamond Tail, L. X., O. X., Turkey Track, Buckle L., Pitchfork, F. L. D. R. O., and many others. Within a few hundred yards of this site we observe the old headquarters of the T. Anchor Ranch, built of logs and harboring the finer memories of the early traditions of the cattle range. It is now the property of the State and utilized as the College farm.

Agriculture came to the Plains with the Quaker settlement in Crosby County. The landmark of that sector is the "Old Rock House." In the late eighties these hardy pioneers made bold to farm. They developed community life and established the first organized school in the Panhandle. Farming came slowly because of aridity. This complex was so pronounced that most of the geographies carried the information that this was a part of the desert. Everyone considered that cattle raising was the ultimate of soil adaptability. This conclusion was augmented by the attitude of the cattleman. He wanted his curly mesquite range ununsullied by the encroachment of those who proposed to follow agricultural pursuits. The "nester" was no more welcome than a "sheep man" in those days. But gradually the country began to settle up. More people began raising grain sorghums such as milo maize and kaffir corn. "Row crop" was the commonly accepted term. Many believed that this would be the limit of farming. Fodder and grain for livestock. Gardens were frowned upon. Black eyed peas and okra were standard in the earlier attempts at gardening. Through the years a steady advance was made and the program was gradually enlarged by experiment until efforts were made to grow cereals. Little more than a decade has elapsed since we were proudly boasting a wheat crop of nearly three million bushels on the Plains. In the year 1931 our gross yield of wheat alone was in excess of 60,000,000 bushels. This was largely due to the extensive use of power farming machinery. Cotton followed in the period from 1900 to 1930 until the South Plains has become a real factor in the cotton market of the world. Marginal lands, some have said perhaps, but year in and year out on the table of a limited experience, this soil can promise little and give more than any other similar area in the State of Texas. This vast empire, larger than the State of Pennsylvania, is probably destined to support many hundreds of thousands of people, perhaps millions, in the immediate fifty years to follow. Even so, the development will not be as marked as that of the past forty-five years. All or most of this latter period has been observed by many present here today. I mention Honorable T. D. Hobart, Judge H. E. Hoover, Colonel R. P. Smythe, Honorable W. H. Patrick, Honorable G. A. F. Parker, Honorable Sam Isaacs, Honorable Ed Baird, Mrs. W. W. Wetzel, Mrs. J. W. Britt, Mrs. Billy Dixon, and many others who might be named if time would permit.

The period of railroad development displacing the old stage lines and their interesting "stage stands" is generally understood. "The Denver," "The Peavine" and "The Choctaw" are all well known; each is now a part of three separate transcontinental lines of railway serving the nation. The progression from buckboard, buggy, "Spaulding Hack," Peter Schuttler, Bain and other wagons (including the difficulties of the Studebaker) are reminiscent of the days of "freighting on the Plains." Canyon City was once the supply point for all of the South Plains, having been displaced by the construction of the Santa Fe to Plainview, Lubbock and beyond, yielding, with some regret, the economic function of distribution to wholesale houses located at the point of crossing of the three lines of railway.

The automobile came in 1906 and made possible the "land boom" of the years that followed. Those of us who observed the "Landseeker Special Trains" with locked doors, bruisers for guards and people herded into automobiles and whisked away like captives, often provoked a smile when we think of them as "land suckers," as they were known to the natives. Now we know the natives were "suckers" for selling for "bonus." They bought, many moved, those who arrived, stayed. The adventurous nature of the people, their hardihood for work and willingness to bear the hardships gave this country a very high type of citizenship. They developed a virgin country from the grass roots to its present state of progress and fulfillment in a period of twenty-five years. Perhaps this is worthy of consideration as an unparalleled achievement in American life. Witness today paved roads, all modern lines of communication, centrally generated electric power with high line transmission lines to all parts of the Panhandle, rapid transport. Today we celebrate the opening of commercial airway schedules, trimotored planes, radio dispatches, enabling the Panhandle citizen to breakfast at home and take the evening meal in New York City, or tarry until after luncheon and spend the evening in Los Angeles. Surely the pioneer who wended his way into the Palo Duro Canyon in 1876 never dreamed of such available facilities in the year 1932.

Apparently the early settlers did not consider the Plains as a place of mineral deposit. In 1918 natural gas was discovered in Potter County by an adventurous driller whose project was financed by a small group of Amarillo citizens. This well on Ranch Creek pointed the way to development of the largest natural gas field yet discovered on this planet. Vast and wide as the plains plateau, it now furnishes fuel for domestic use and power throughout the Mississippi Valley region and from Cheyenne to Buffalo. No doubt Panhandle natural gas will soon be available to the congested centers of the Atlantic Seaboard. Improved methods of welding steel pipe brought this about, for otherwise it would probably have been too expensive and hazardous to undertake, after the manner and on the grand scale of the existing net work. Even natural gasoline pipe lines extend to St. Louis, while the ordinary oil pipe lines serve our Gulf Coast and reach to the Atlantic ports. This mineral discovery gave a great impetus to the development then in progress, and has served to materially augment our population.

It may be well to remark upon some of the percentages attending growth of a few of our counties. Beginning with 1920, through the 1930 census, Cochran rated 2829.9 per cent; Hockley rated 6686.9 per cent; Lamb rated 1395.3 per cent; Hutchinson rated 1959.4 per cent; while the Randall County population has progressed from 187 people in 1890 to 963 in 1900, to 3312 in 1910, to 3675 in 1920 and 7071 in 1930. Hockley county had no residents in the year 1890, and only 44 in 1900. Thus we realize the amazing acceleration of growth when we learn that Hockley County has increased its population from 44 in 1900 to 9298 in 1930, thus disproving the statement of the geographer concerning the non-productive character of the soil and aridity of the region. Cotton culture, with the modern means of cultivation, unattended by the usual natural difficulties such as timber to fell and stumps to pull, is the answer.

When the Plains of Texas began producing wheat and cotton in terms of millions, it caused economic disturbance throughout the markets of the world, and within this week we have witnessed the lowest market price for wheat yet recorded for several centuries. Attending distress and shrinkage of land valuations inevitably follow such experience. We are buoyed by the thought that the land can and does produce; so let us not be too much concerned about the tape line of measurement. A bushel is yet a bushel; it produces the same amount of flour. At present prices and average per capita consumption, of $20.00 a person can purchase all of the bread stuff he will comfortably consume in twenty years. Those who sojourned here in 1893 can attest the fact that the people made it through. It is just another opportunity to test the mettle, stamina and, to use a range term, the "bottom" of our citizenship. Those who stand will be worthy of citizenship in this great country. They will have demonstrated to a slight degree, some of the qualities of the pioneers and trail blazers of the Panhandle. Our hardships now are not to be compared with those of forty years ago! Surely, we will be found among those who are able to stand the "gaff" and not whine. Roweling the mount never made a better cowhorse. Patient training with plenty of practice produced a good "cutting horse" for the roundup.

May we have the patience, strength and fortitude to face the future; may we be resolute in purpose to accomplish our fair share of the work to be done in developing the Panhandle for succeeding generations.

The cultural advancement of our people has been the greatest achievement in these forty years of plenty. Progress in the development of material wealth and the natural resources has attended in all of the various matters mentioned, but over and beyond and far above stands the spiritual and educational achievement, as a beacon light, summoning further and greater effort. We should ever be greatly concerned about the quality of our citizenship. We sincerely trust that the ratio of infiltration may never exceed the comfortable assimilation by the new citizen of the traditions of our country. We earnestly desire that truth, honor, honesty, fair dealing, a decent regard for others, charity, love of country, a quickened interest in public education, a sense of community obligation, pride in the history of this territory and all of the elements of good citizenship may be revered and exalted in the Panhandle; that to have it said, "His word is as good as his bond," is being in all things true, is the great compliment that all should strive to earn. When we preserve the early traditions of the people of the Panhandle and extol the virtue of rugged honesty for its priceless worth, we shall have profited and succeeded in greater abundance than had we discovered mountains of sordid gold. On these Plains we expect plain living, plain thinking, plain talk and plain people. We demand that everything be on the level. God created our country in that fashion, and the man or woman who cherishes such ideals is welcome to live among us in peace, strength and unity. Those who do not measure the test will find life more comfortable elsewhere and we encourage their departure.

Here, the home, the school and the church have enjoyed remarkable consecration. Home loving, God fearing and intelligent people constitute our citizenship. The high plane of the ideals of the pioneers is one of priceless heritage to this generation. May this cornerstone be the benchmark for future development of our social, ethical and civic advancement. We devoutly pray that neither we nor those who follow us shall ever suffer the level to be reduced below this cornerstone, fixed as a marker today. Here in Pioneer Hall may our children and their children's children frequently visit; in humility and reverence for the ennobling influence of the founders of the worthy traditions of this, the Panhandle of Texas, fervently repeating after us in like spirit that we evince today, each to and for the other, that universal prayer of the poet:

"The tumult and the shouting dies,
The Captains and the Kings depart,
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget; lest we forget!

"For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not Thee to guard;
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy Mercy on Thy People, Lord."

SCHOOL RIVALRY

School rivalry is a wonderful thing! It makes us work and fight a little harder. It makes us more loyal, and we boost our school to the very last.

When one of our old rivals come over to play a game of ball, or we send our boys to their city, the ball boys always fight as hard as they possibly can for their school and town. The pep squad and other members of the school take their places on the sidelines and yell louder than ever before for them to win. The faculty is there rooting just as loud and enthusiastically as the students. The townspeople and ball enthusiasts are there shouting for the honor to fall on their home town.

We want our boys to do their best, yet treat their opponents fairly and courteously. We, too, should be as nice as we can to the visitors, treating them as we would wish to be treated if we were their guests.

Farwell Football Squad to Play Eagles Armistice

Next Friday afternoon at Buffalo Stadium the Canyon Eagles will entertain the Clark turtled lads from Farwell in a part of the local Armistice Day celebration program.

They have not been defeated this season. Farwell has a strong team. This is expected to be a good game. Farwell was defeated by the powerful Happy eleven who in turn were defeated by the Eagles in one of the most exciting games ever witnessed in Canyon.

Coach Barksdale has been putting his squad through a stiff drill this week in preparation for the Armistice celebration.

This game is being sponsored by the local American Legion post. The Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion has charge of the sale of tickets. The returns from the ticket sales will go into the local charity fund.

The tickets will be on sale for 25 and 35 cents. A large number are expected to purchase tickets, root for the Eagles, and at the same time to help the local charity fund.

Canyon To Be Represented At State Convention

The Canyon Public Schools are sending a number of charts of exhibit material to the State Teachers Convention, which meets November 24, 25, 26, at Ft. Worth.

These charts represent the work that has been done in each department. The high school is sending forty-eight posters and the grade school more than that.

In the high school Miss Clark, Miss Foster, and Miss Murrell are in charge of the exhibits. Mr. Jones is head of the grade school committee.

A MESSAGE TO SUPERINTENDENTS AND PRINCIPALS

By Glen Frank, President of the University of Wisconsin.

I run the risk of seeming heretical in suggesting that a grave national danger to education lurks at the heart of the current concern with economy. That economy, drastic beyond anything we normally think, is needed in the conduct of our affairs no intelligent schoolman will question. The cost of local, state, and national governments has bent the back of the American people. Taxes have become a plague. But there is a large element of blindness, blundering, and sheer insincerity in much of the hysterical campaign against public expenditures now sweeping the nation. By all means let us stop waste. But let us be sure that it is real waste we are stopping.

It is interesting to note that we could dismantle every federal bureau and stop every civil function of the federal government—with the exception of construction, relief, loans for shipbuilding and the federal farm board—and still reduce the federal budget only 8 per cent. The complete cost of the legislative, judicial, and executive activities of the federal government absorbs less than two-thirds of one per cent of the total federal budget. Almost three-fourths of the expenditures of the federal government are absorbed by our military costs and obligations growing out of past wars.

It simply is not the scientific, social, and educational services of the nation that create the real tax burden that bends the American back. And yet, throughout the nation, we are trying to balance budgets by cutting the heart out of the only things that make government a creative social agency in this complicated world. We slash scientific bureaus. We trim down our support of social services and regulatory bureaus. We squeeze education. We fire visiting nurses. We starve libraries. We drastically reduce hospital staffs. And we call this economy, and actually think we are intelligent in calling it that.

Real economy waits upon far-sighted statesmanship that will effect deep-going local, state, and national, as well as international reforms. Indiscriminate budget slashing may set us back socially for a generation. Now is the time for all administrators of public services to search their programs for every possible readjustment towards simplification that will reduce costs without reducing the quality of essential service and, with that done, to fight manfully to draw the distinction between real and bogus economy in public services.—In the Wisconsin Journal of Education.

Student-Parent Night School Had Large Attendance

The Parent Teachers Association sponsored a night school Tuesday night so that the parents could see for themselves what work their children were doing. Only the first three classes were held, each being twenty minutes long.

After all three classes were over, everyone went to chapel where a program was given.

Mrs. Robinson, the vice-president of the P. T. A., introduced the following speakers:

Mr. Carruth spoke to the parents about the health of the child and about the effect of the health of the child on his education.

Miss Antoinette Ahlschier, the health nurse, gave the school statistics on the health of the school children, and urged parents to lend their assistance in correcting these defects.

Rev. McKinzie urged all of the parents to join the P. T. A.

Mrs. Lee Foster and Mrs. J. D. Barker entertained by playing:

"The Rosary."
 "Ragamuffin."
 "Glowworm."
 "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise."

Many memories were brought to the minds of the parents of the times when they themselves attended geometry, English, and history classes.

EAGLES SCORE VICTORY OVER HEREFORD WHITEFACES 13-7 IN LAST FRIDAY'S GAME

HEREFORD GAME

Led by the Thomas to Ellison aerial combination the Canyon Eagles soared over the Hereford White Faces last Friday afternoon by the count: 13 to 7.

This was the Eagles' fifth victory of the season against no defeats and one tie game.

The game was played on comparatively even terms the first quarter, the Eagles with the wind to their backs proved to be a superior team to that of Hereford.

Joe Collins, Eagle substitute right end played one of the outstanding games of the day. "Scoop" Ellison, the Eagle left end was probably the most consistent ground gainer of the Mele. Tyson Cox, Eagle left guard proved to be the main factor in preventing the White Faces from scoring from scrimmage, because he was consistently going through the line and throwing the Hereford ball carriers for loss after loss. Jack Russell's broken field running enabled the Hereford team to get within scoring distance many times only to be stopped by the Eagles' forward wall. Little Pies Baker, the shifty, side stepping substitute Hereford half-back was the star of the game. Baker intercepted an Eagle pass in the fourth quarter, side stepped his way through the entire Eagle defense and scored Hereford's lone counter.

Mrs. Pauline Schaefer and Misses Myra and Dixie of Albuquerque, New Mexico, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Wester.

Athletic Club

Featuring a Good Health program, the girls' athletic club met Tuesday, Nov. 1, during the extra activity period. The girls chose "Tawamana" for the name of their club. Lela Hickox began the program with a talk on posture. Good health in relation to foot wear was illustrated by showing the types of shoes the girls wore to school. A beauty contest was opened. As the meeting adjourned, a health chart was given to each girl to grade herself on such things as posture, cleanliness and general appearance.

Sale of Simmons, Haas and Dykes, Giants-Cardinals Swap, Johnson-Cronin Switch, Hiring of Hornsby, May Not Be All What They Seem

BY PHILIP MARTIN

WHILE football has been holding the spotlight in the sports world during the past five or six weeks, there have been some doings in the baseball department which will bring about a change of scenery in the big leagues during the 1933 season.

The four big events hashed out by the winter stove league have been:

1. Connie Mack's sale of Simmons, Haas and Dykes to the White Sox.

2. Release of Walter Johnson and the appointment of Joe Cronin as manager of the Washington Senators.

3. The big scale swap between the Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals.

4. Hiring of Rogers Hornsby as a back private in the rear rank of the Cardinals.

BEHIND each of these deals is a bit of reasoning which makes them seem to be just the opposite of what they were first thought to be.

It was thought at first that Mack's sale of his three stars was made to break up his championship team of 1931 and strengthen the Chicago White Sox. But it seems now that the big idea behind the sale was the fact that the venerable Connie had to dig down in his jeans and produce $33,000 for Simmons' salary every year.

Philadelphia fans were a bit lukewarm toward the Athletics this year. The turnstiles didn't click as often as they did when Mack produced a champion outfit. Therefore, shekels were far from plentiful, and Mack wanted to get rid of that $33,000 burden. It seems that Dykes and Haas, two pretty fair ball players, but past their prime, went along as camouflage.

The Johnson-Cronin event can be blamed on two things—the fans, forgetful of the long service the "Big Train" put in at the Capital, were yelling for his neck; and Clark Griffith, too, wanted to save money.

In 26-year-old Joe Cronin, Griffith has the youngest ball player-manager, and one of the best shortstops in the major leagues.

HORNBY'S signature on a Cardinal contract seems to indicate that the trouble between Branch Rickey and Sam Breadon, the club owners, and the Rajah, is all over. Six years ago Rogers piloted the Cardinals to a pennant and a championship. His reward was the can.

It looks as if Rickey and Breadon have the Rajah in St. Louis town for a purpose. The signing of Hornsby after the deal they pulled off with the Giants, which involved their giving the New York outfit two players for four, may have some bearing on it. Anyhow, Rogers once played with the Giants, and the players St. Louis got in the trade are friends of his.

It's no secret that the fickle St. Louis fans, who attend ball games in crowds of from 500 to 1500, aren't satisfied with the way Gabby Street brought his Cardinals along after winning the world's championship last year. And the fact that Rogers was signed as a player for only one year also seems to indicate that there's a dark chap somewhere in the woodpile.

That fellow may be the manager of the Cardinals for the Rajah, should Gabby Street not have such a good season next year.

CANNING HINTS

Editor's Note—These recipes for canning are given by Miss Sadie Kate Bass, home demonstration agent for Randall county, and are especially seasonable for use at this time of the year. It is suggested that they be clipped and placed in your recipe cabinet for reference now and in the future.

A FAMOUS OLD FRUIT CAKE

Ingredients: 1 lb. grape fruit peel or citron; 1 lb. pecans or black walnuts; 1 lb. candied pineapple; 1 lb. candied red watermelon rind or cherries; 3 lbs. seeded raisins; 1 1/2 lbs. figs or currants; 1/2 lb. butter; 1/2 lb. brown sugar; 1/2 cup fruit juice or sweet pickle syrup; 6 eggs; 1 lb. flour; 1 tsp. cinnamon; 1/2 tsp. cloves; 1 tsp. nutmeg; 1/4 tsp. allspice; 1/4 tsp. salt.

Directions: Wash and dry currants. Cut grape fruit peel or citron and pineapple in one-half inch cubes, leaving cherries and nuts whole. Cream the butter, sugar and beaten egg yolks. Mix flour and spices, add flour and fruit juices alternately. Add fruits, and nuts, mix thoroughly. Last of all, add beaten egg whites. Mix dough thoroughly and place in baking pans which have been lined with butter paper which has been oiled. Cover the top of the pan with heavy brown wrapping paper which has been oiled. Tie the paper securely around the edge of pans to prevent water getting into the cake. Place the pans in the cooker and pour boiling water into the cooker half way up the pans. Place the top of the cooker, but do not fasten the clamps. Keep at the boiling point 55 minutes. After that, clamp the lid down securely on the cooker. Close the petcock and raise the pressure to 15 pounds for 15 minutes. This insures cooking the cake to the center of the pan. Remove from cooker, take off paper covers, and place pans in a slow oven for 15 minutes. This dries out the crust. This recipe makes 11 pounds.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE

Ingredients: 1 lb. white raisins; 1 lb. candied pineapple; 1/2 lb. candied cherries or candied red watermelon rind; 1 lb. shelled almonds or butternuts; 1 whole coconut (some of milk may be used); 1/2 lb. diced grape fruit peel; 1/2 lemon peel; 1/2 lb. orange peel; 1 lb. shelled pecans; 3/4 cups flour; 2 cups sugar; 1 cup milk; 1 cup butter; whites of 5 eggs; 3 tps. baking powder; 1 tsp. rum or vanilla flavor.

Directions: Cream the butter, add sugar gradually, and beat thoroughly. Dredge the fruits and nuts with part of the flour. Sift flour and baking powder together. Add milk to the butter mixture, alternating with the dry ingredients. Combine fruits, nuts and candied peel with this mixture. Add the rum flavor or vanilla extract. If the cake mixture seems too dry, some of the coconut milk can be added. Lastly, fold in the stiffly beaten egg white.

The same method of steaming, cooking and decorating given under the Famous Old Fruit Cake may be used for the White Fruit Cake.

RUGGED LINES AND FLASHING BACKS FEATURE

BURK TO DAVIS

Like two primordial monsters of bygone days, Coach "Sad Sam" Burton's Buffaloes and Coach Burnice Grave's Lobos from Sul Ross battled to a 7-7 draw last Saturday afternoon before a huge homecoming crowd of frenzied rooters. Neither was satisfied but each was forced to his lair with a stingy touchdown as his share of the spoils.

And what a battle it was! Filled with thrills; dragging at times as if each monster had fought his limit and had simply withdrawn to a safe distance for a short breathing spell, only to renew the battle again for the finish.

Bufs Forced to Hustle

The scrap was everything that the spectators could have wished for. Williams, that powerful leader of the herd, and Davis, youthful contender for his crown, Fortenberry, lofty winnman, Spence, bulky line crasher, Manning, that hulking brute of a tackle, McClendon, center par excellence, were all pushed to the limit to compete with such members of the Lobo pack as Sharp, fast and tricky half with his co-partner, Bridges, ever a dangerous threat, Bozart and Porter both of whom could pass like nobody's business, and that pair of knotty tackles, Robinson and Gilliland.

Regardless of the outcome of the game the summary shows that the Bufs were the better scrappers of the two for while the Lobos were ringing up 169 yards from 57 plays, the Bufs were amassing 387 yards on 81 plays. Of these yards, fourteen passes were completed out of 23 tries for 216 yards and the Lobos passed eight times and completed one for 35 yards.

Freak Half
Even the officials got so absorbed in the game that they became confused on the time and the first half lacked five minutes of being over when the time keeper fired the gun, the five minutes being played off at the beginning of the second half. Something like two hours and forty minutes elapsed from the time the first whistle blew until the final gun was fired.

The Lobos crashed the portals of the Herd for their counter in the first quarter when Sharp passed, and crashed and smashed the punch drunk Buffalo line clear up the field while team mates were whipping their ears down in genuine air tight football.

Williams Scores
In the extra period came the wildest thrill of the whole thrill filled game when Cow Williams took a long pass from Burk, then ran, side-stepped, and stiff-armed the rest of his way to the stripped zone for the Bufs share of the honors. Teague furnished the necessary extra point to tie the score. Davis, co-star with Williams took five passes in a row from Burk, all good for much ground, and along with his receiving, mauled the line for plenty of yardage. In addition to all this, Davis scared the pack into jitters with his long end runs.

The second half was a new song for the Herd, for, when they came out of their lair, they took the offensive with a vengeance.

Place Kick Falls Short
When they tackled the Rossites it was with locomotive-like ferocity. It seemed as if each Buffalo took special pride in making new dents in the turf with a Lobo, and be it understood, the Pack seemed to like it for they came back for more punishment every time, meeting out plenty of bone bruising themselves in reciprocation. Late in the last few seconds of the final quarter, Williams went out for Boyd while McClendon attempted to place kick for more points but the breaks were not with the Bufs on this day and the kick went wide just as the gun went off announcing that the game was over and the final score was 7-7.

carried in Randall county with the exception of the one proposing authorization of Legislative appropriation of funds for the Texas Centennial celebration in 1936.

The box in the northwest corner of the county was the first to report and the only box in the county which went unanimous for the Democratic electors with none for the Republican electors.

Precinct 1 and the Edgfield boxes were the only ones in the county to give Bullington a majority over Mrs. Ferguson. The lead piled up in these two boxes enabled him to overcome the Ferguson votes in the other eight boxes.

Rock-ribbed Republican states Tuesday turned thumbs down on the Republican leaders and leadership as many of them jumped into the Democratic column for the first time in history.

Republican senators and congressmen throughout the nation were swept out of office in the tide of Democratic votes, which completely spelled the defeat of the Grand Old Party. Such names as Smoot, Bingham, Watson, Moses, Brookhart and others, prominent before the American people for a quarter of a century and more, were removed from the political picture in the avalanche of votes which replaced them with Democratic candidates.

Such victories indicate clearly that President Franklin D. Roosevelt will have a Democratic Senate and a Democratic House by a substantial majority to support him in his measures when he takes office on March 4.

T. I. A. A. TO END CAREER THIS SEASON

With the close of the current football season the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association, the oldest athletic organization in Texas, will pass into history.

The disappearance of the T. I. A. A. comes about as the result of the announced withdrawal from the conference of Abilene Christian College, McMurry College, and Daniel Baker, College of Arts and Industries. Sul Ross State Teachers College, and West Texas State Teachers College as members of the organization. This number is too limited for the proper functioning of an athletic conference.

Practically every senior college and university of the state have at one time or another belonged to the T. I. A. A. The organization began in 1902, the membership including Texas University, Baylor University, Texas A. & M., Texas Christian University, Austin College, Trinity College, and Southwestern University.

Other schools, who have had membership in the T. I. A. A. are as follows: Daniel Baker, Rice Institute, Southern Methodist University, Howard Payne, Simmons University, East Texas Teachers, North Texas Teachers, Southwest Texas Teachers, West Texas Teachers, Sam Houston Teachers, Abilene Christian College, St. Edwards, Stephen F. Austin Teachers, Sul Ross Teachers, and Texas Arts and Industries.

The T. I. A. A. has been a general athletic conference, including in its sponsored activities, football, basketball, and track and field competitions.

In football Daniel Baker and Howard Payne head the list in football championships, each taking two championships since 1920. Austin College, Southwestern, McMurry, Sam Houston Teachers, and North Texas Teachers follow with one title each.

In the track and field division Abilene Christian College has always stood well in front. Out of the sixteen events in the division, A. C. C. holds records in ten.

In basketball W. T. S. T. C. is undisputed peer in the T. I. A. A., having won six championship titles in the last eight years. Since entering in 1923, the Buffaloes have played 233 games and have won 199 of them. It is believed that this is a national record.

At present, officers of the T. I. A. A. are, D. A. Shirley, West Texas Teachers, president; T. H. Hart, Daniel Baker, vice-president; J. A.

Cox, Abilene Christian College, secretary.

The question now confronting W. T. and the two remaining members of the T. I. A. A. is what will take the place of the old conference. There has been some talk of organizing an interstate conference between schools in Oklahoma, New Mexico, and West Texas, but as yet no definite arrangement has been made.

Cornerstone

of their fathers—a memorial to the colorful history of West Texas. "We have met today to lay the cornerstone of a building that at once symbolizes their achievements and their hopes. It is the spirit of the pioneer objectified," he said.

Guleke in Chief Address
The main address on the program was delivered by J. O. Guleke of Amarillo, who, as a member of the State Board of Education, represented the State of Texas at the dedication.

Briefly and comprehensively he reviewed the history of the Panhandle from the obscure day in 1541 when Coronado marched his starving brigade across the Plains up to the present time.

As he gave a descriptive account of hardships faced by frontiersmen and the transformation of this rugged "waste-land" into a region of cultivated and civilized homeland, emphasis was given to his words by music from radios in nearby residences and the drone of a powerful tri-motored plane soaring high overhead. Time will mellow memories of the Wild West, at last fading them forever and leaving to fiction and to history the task of perpetuating one of the most gallant conquests of any nation in history. In the Museum will be found proof and living evidence of a territory once inhabited by roaming buffalo and hostile Indians.

Honors First Pioneer
Outstanding among the impressive tributes made by Mr. Guleke was the suggestion that another memorial be executed, a lasting honor to the first pioneer to establish a home in the Panhandle, the late Colonel Charles Goodnight.

"It would be fitting to build a road straight from the door of this museum, through the Palo Duro canyon, to the old home of the Goodnights," he said. "The Goodnight Trail, it should be called to commemorate his courage and faith."

"Bones" Hooks, Negro Pioneer
Not least among the tributes made at the occasion was a white rose given by Matthew "Bones"

Hooks, pioneer negro of Amarillo and one time cowpuncher on the old T-Anchor ranch. He recently celebrated his 68th birthday anniversary and is one of the true pioneers of the region around whom much interesting folklore is woven.

Following completion of the ceremonies, Society members and donors to the museum fund entered their names in a leather bound book decorated by Ben Carlton Meade and George Autry, Amarillo artists, and presented the Society by Horace Russell of Amarillo.

Dedication in Spring
The building, constructed out of native Texas limestone and Texas products as nearly as possible, will be completed by early spring.

According to L. F. Sheffy, Secretary of the Society who has worked faithfully on the project for several years and is probably due more credit for its ultimate realization than any other single person, the Museum will be dedicated when the P. P. H. S. holds its annual meeting in April, 1933.

The Directors of the Panhandle Plains Historical Society are: T. D. Hobart of Pampa, president; H. E. Hoover of Canadian; J. A. Hill of Canyon; W. H. Patrick of Clarendon; Horace Russell of Amarillo; James D. Hamlin of Farwell; W. T. Coble of Amarillo; and A. J. Fries of Childress.

The personnel of the building committee is composed of Judge Hoover, W. H. Patrick, Col. R. P. Smythe of Plainview; Mrs. W. T. Coble of Amarillo; Mrs. Billy Dixon of Amarillo; Gene Howe of Amarillo, and L. F. Sheffy of Canyon.
